SITUATION SUMMARY

Oil Sheen, Goleta Beach, Santa Barbara County – Hazardous Material Spill Report # 15-4349

On 07/29/15 at 0900 hours, the Warning Center (WC) completed Spill Report #15-4349, reported by a boat owner offshore of the City of Goleta who reported seeing a half mile sheen. The GPS location the reporting party gave put the boat about a mile offshore of Goleta Beach. The California State Warning Center conducted all appropriate notifications, including but not limited to local government agencies.

- Per Santa Barbara County Fire Department at 1112 hours, they had responded to the original report and found a 40 foot sheen at 1,000 yards off Goleta Pier.
- The WC contacted SURCOM and was told that they had assigned a Warden to the incident. At 1645 hours, the assigned warden advised she will meet with USCG and take samples at the beach. Biologist also on the way. Samples will be taken to a lab in Santa Barbara for analysis. ETR will be longer than a few hours.
- Per US Coast Guard Sector Los Angeles, they called their Marine Safety detachment in Santa Barbara County to advise them of the report. They also checked with all the offshore Platforms who verified that there were no discharges or visible oil in the water.
- Reports from a USCG overflight shows non recoverable oil sheen near platform Holly, which has been shut down for the last month. Since it isn't pumping, seep would increase. USCG will boat out to the sheen just to take samples. Clean up is unlikely.

Per Santa Barbara County OEM at 1640 hours, the slick near Goleta Beach is currently being investigated as an incident separate from Refugio.

- It is described after a USCG overflight as an unrecoverable sheen approximately 3 miles x ½ mile, with 30 percent coverage.
- OSPR and USCG responded to the beach and took samples.
- USCG will also take sheen water samples for comparison.
- There are some tar balls on the east side of the beach, and County Fire is also reporting some tar balls at Hope Ranch.
- The beaches remain open, though beachgoers are advised to avoid oil contact.

Cal OES Duty Officers continue to monitor the situation.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Hot temperatures will continue across Trinity County today as the remainder of northwest California begins a cooling trend. A few thunderstorms are possible across the Trinity County Mountains on Friday.

Medford Weather:

Conditions will remain dry and hot again today. Some mid-level cloudiness is expected in northern California, possibly over the higher terrain in western Siskiyou County and just east of Mount Shasta. Friday afternoon and evening, thunderstorms are expected for the Cascades, Siskiyou, and higher terrain in Siskiyou County. The possibility of thunderstorms this weekend into the start of next week remains low; however, a stronger shortwave moving into Modoc County on Sunday may result in thunderstorms east of the Cascades.

Reno Weather:

High pressure over the Desert Southwest will bring above normal temperatures for the next few days. Increasing moisture and instability will bring a chance for thunderstorms Friday through Monday, mainly for the Sierra and in far western Nevada. Gusty outflow winds and lightning fire starts are the main concerns for Friday and Saturday with locally heavy rain possible this weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

Slightly cooler temperatures are expected today, although it will still be very warm in inland areas. Muggy conditions are expected today and Friday as monsoonal moisture moves in from the south increasing the possibility of showers and isolated thunderstorms for the end of the week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Hot and dry weather is expected again today with a slow cooling trend into early next week. Daytime highs will be near normal for much of next week. Scattered mountain thunderstorms Friday through Monday as monsoon moisture is pulled northward, otherwise dry conditions will continue.

Hanford Weather:

A northwestward influx of monsoonal moisture will bring an increase in clouds and humidity to the central California interior through Friday with a chance of thunderstorms, especially over the mountains and desert.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Monsoonal flow will bring increased humidity and a chance of showers and thunderstorms to the region today and tonight. The chance of thunderstorms will continue across the mountains, deserts, and interior valley into the weekend, mainly during the afternoon and evening hours. Southwesterly flow aloft will return Monday and persist through midweek bringing dry weather with near normal temperatures.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

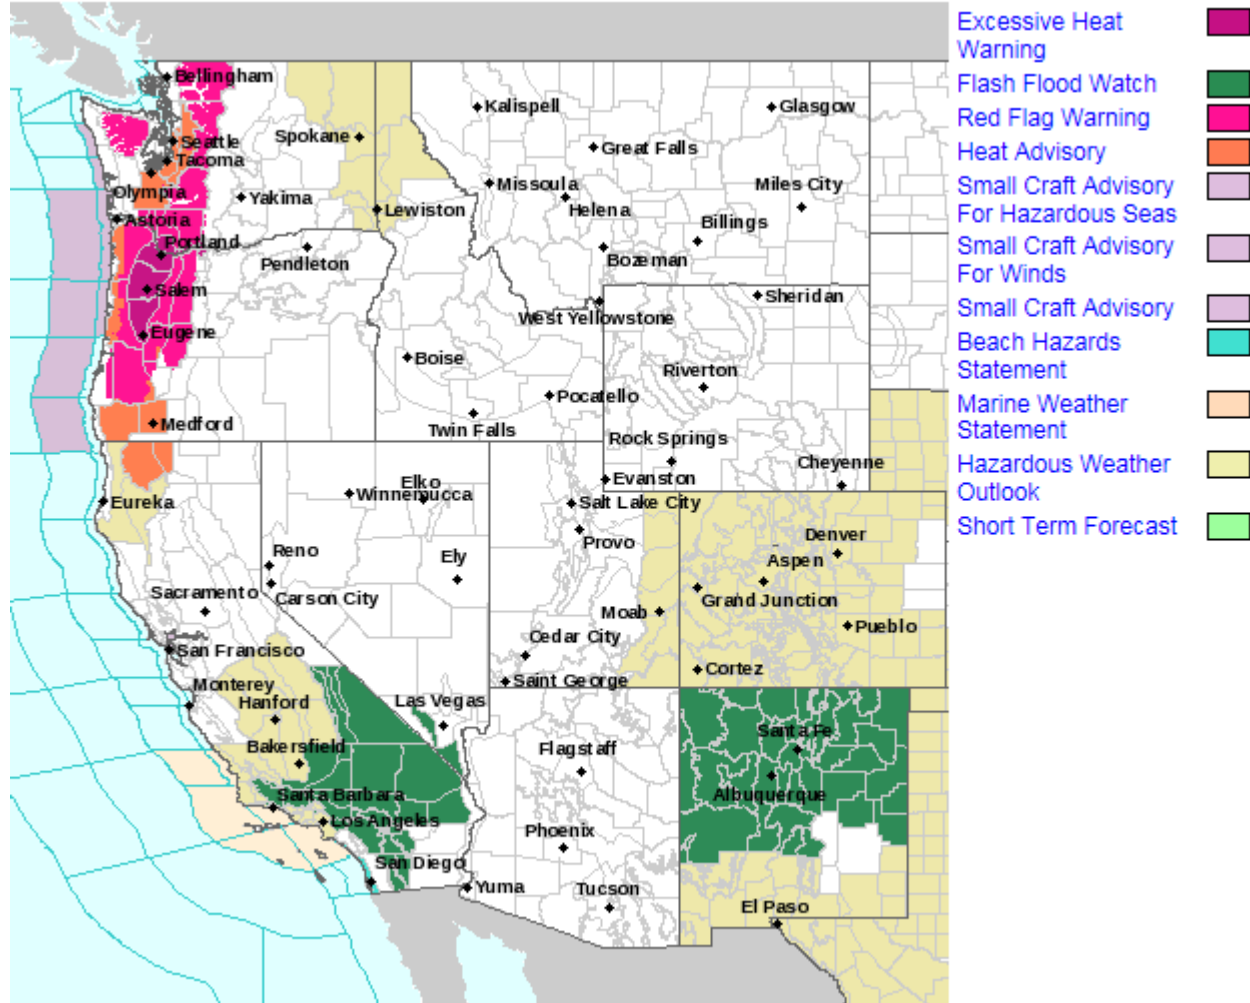

Monsoonal moisture around strong high pressure over the Four Corners region will continue to bring warm and humid weather into the region through Friday. Showers and thunderstorms are likely today and this evening with the strongest coverage over the mountains and deserts. The air mass dries out over the weekend into early next week for lower chances of afternoon thunderstorms over the mountains and deserts. The marine layer will remain mainly over the coast and portions of the valleys.

Southeast California Weather:

High pressure building over the region will gradually reduce rain chances today onward into the upcoming weekend and into early next week. Temperatures will take a slight dip below normal today due to widespread cloud coverage before a slow warming trend Friday into early next week as the atmosphere slowly dries out.

Organized Response to Mass Casualty/Active Shooter Incidents: Leading Practices from Ventura County, California

Free Webinar

To improve countywide response to all violent incidents, regardless of size and complexity, a multi-discipline task force was established. Every law enforcement agency, fire department, County Emergency Management Services Agency, EMS transport providers and dispatch center was represented on the task force. The task force developed policies and training programs for a countywide response. To date we have conducted over 150 joint training sessions and trained over 1500 emergency responders.

This webinar will discuss how the Ventura County program was established, as well as roadblocks encountered and solutions for overcoming them. Developing a program is only the first step. The next, and probably most critical, step in the process is conducting joint training. For most agencies joint training, especially between Law and Fire, is not a common occurrence. Joint training methods and training opportunities will be identified. The tactics/skills required in the "Warm Zone" will be presented. Focus will be on those we found challenging in relation to different disciplines working together. Discussion includes incident command and communication problems encountered when operating at these multidisciplinary events.

Instructor: Fire Captain J. Scott Quirarte has been with the Ventura County Fire Department for 25 years. Captain Quirarte is the project lead for the Ventura County Interagency Active Shooter Task Force.
